Gaglardi May Sue Papers

Gaglardi told The Canadian Press in Vancouver today in a phone call from Kamloops that he would consult his lawyer concerning an interview published in the Toronto Star

He was quoted in the Star as having made disparaging remarks about Premier Bennett and the quality of leader ship given by most Social Credit eabinet ministers.

The Star story, by the paper's western bureau chief, Chris Dennett, was rewritten the Vancouver Province this morning and Gaglardi said he was contemplating legal action against the Province as well as the Star.

Thursday in Kamloops, th rehabilitation minister denied that he had made remarks to the effect that Bennett was clinging to power only be-cause he didn't want him (Gaglardi) to take over as Gaglardi laughed off the re-port as "more of the hogwash the media dreams up."

He claimed he had told the Star reporter that "as long as Premier Bennett is there I am with him 100 per cent." He said he would never talk to the Star reporter again.

About the interview, he said his comments were made in private conversation. "They were surmisings, a thinking-out-loud of things that might happen," he said.

A Rare Vancouver Island Look At an Exotic Southern Visitor

It could have been Biscayne Bay, Florida, or Calcasieu Louisiana, or San California; but wasn't. It was Esquimalt La-goon, British Columbia.

Earlier this week all these far-flung North American birding spots had one thing in common; they were places where you could see a Snowy Egret. For Biscayne Bay, Calcasieu Pass and San Diego this was nothing out of the or dinary but for Esquimalt La-good it was something new. Snowy Egrets had never been seen there before or anyelse on Vancouver Island for that matter.

Credit for the discovery of this Snowy Eget goes to J. M. Meiklejohn, Registrar at Royal Roads, who spends many of his leisure hours keeping tab on the comings and goings of the birds of Esquimalt Lagoon. He first sighted it on Tuesday. By early Wednesday morning Tom Briggs and I could count ourselves among those who had been fortunate enough to get a look at this exotic little wanderer from the south.

As the name might imply, Snowy Egrets are white but not just ordinary white; more like the the white of a detergent-huckster's dreams. They're small too; less than

Nervous in the Service

Voters, apart from dyed-in-thewool party supporters, have not been helped much in making a choice on the basis of issues in the election campaign. While a large number of issues, or at least platform planks, have been offered to the public, there has been a great deal of over-lapping in this department. There appear to be so many points on which nearly all the parties agree that the uncommitted voter still has a problem of selec-

What does emerge from the smoke and reverberations of the hustings, however, is the fact that fgent in the Legislature. more than ever a strong opposition contingent is needed in the Legislature. If Mr. Bennett is going to be given a final term of office before his departure to honorable retirement - and there are serious and unprecedented threats to the familiar return in strength of the Social Credit squad to the government benches — then the need for more able spokesmen in opposition is clearly apparent.

After twenty years the government is showing the inevitable signs of age that afflict any administration which suffers from too much success. The secrecy about public business which has always been the hallmark of Mr. Bennett's style of governance has now been overlaid with a form of party arrogance which attaches itself all too readily to regimes too long in power. The result is that protection of the public interest calls for a strong critical contin-

This election is fortunate to have a sizable entry of knowledgeable candidates who as individuals could contribute much to discussion in the House and in the legislative committees. A few of them may be found in the NDP ranks, but the party itself is worn and tired from a lifetime of shouting outside the Social Credit walls. The beach-head of Liberals, now under a new leader, and the revival of Conservatives, also with new leadership, offer the best choice of building a needed body of able crit-

The obvious fact of this resurgence of practical alternatives to the Social Credit ranks, and the strong likelihood that these candidates will oust some of the party deadwood that Mr. Bennett has accumulated over the years, undoubtedly are giving the premier anxious moments. Few campaigns have seen him so intensive in his efforts to buy gratitude with promises of cash, so sensitive to the danger of questions from his audiences, so urgent in his efforts to denigrate the other party leaders.

August 30 may not, unfortunately, see a great many changes. But for the good of the province it had better see some.

"... of course I'm going to vote Social Credit . . . because if Mr. Bennett loses he may get all the ferries, the highways, the hospitals, the home-owner grants, the old age pensions, the universities, the railway and maybe the whole of B.C. and take them all home with him . . ."

All-American Game process along. It was the Canadians on the Alberta Conservation Board, 15 years ago, who abolished the economic allowance previously granted all oil vells when pro-rating production to market demand. This change was a bonanza for the international companies with big reserve fields and the kiss of death for the small-bore Canadian independents.

Thirty-five years ago, Canadian engineers in Turner Valley perfected techniques for the removal of hydrogen sulphide and natural gas liquids from natural gas in the Trigid Canadian climate. When the natural gas boom developed in the 1960's it created the need to construct dozens of other gas processing

All the engineering expertise and technical know-how required was available in Alberta. Instead of using this reservoir of knowledge as a base on which engineering industry, the anti-Canadian Canadians who had the power to do so turned it over to California engineers.

Not only did these decisions cost Can ada an industry, they cost the gas industry untold millions to remedy the mistakes made by California designers. Compression systems failed to compress, fume dispersal stacks failed to disperse corrosion resistant materials failed to resist corrosion

When Trans-Canada Pipelines decided to reduce the heating quality of its gas by installing a liquids extraction plant, its anti-Canadian decision makers selected an American firm to do the job. It in turn reached clear down to Oklahoma for engineering and even supervisory personnel. No Canadian voice was raised in protest, despite the fact that all the required skills were abundantly available in Canada.

Favoring Outsiders

As discovery followed discovery after Leduc in 1947, it was anti-Canadian Canadians in the Immigration Department who opened the border gates to the inflow of American oilwell drilling contractors, many with rattle trap equipment, who skimmed the cream off the drilling business.

When oil and gas pipelines were being financed, New York bankers, being Americans, did what comes naturally to all Americans. (And it comes as naturally to English, French, Mexicans and Japanese.) They insisted that all engineering and economic studies bear the imprint of other Americans. But no Canadian voices were raised to insist that Canadians be given the work because the

Render Unto Delta

The decision of the Algerian and holding prisoners for ransom government to return the $1 million extorted from Delta Airlines of the United States by a group of hijackers last July 31 is a welcome and creditable one. It follows the precedent created by Algeria's recent return of $500,000 also extorted by a pair of American hijackers who sought refuge in the Mediterranean country.

With this move, Algeria has struck a major blow in dissuading persons who see hijacking planes as an easy way to win a fortune. With the financial sweetener somewhat soured, at least so far as landing in Algeria is concerned, the whole idea of hijacking may invite second thoughts by some who would like to try their luck.

The matter of returning hijackers to their country of origin to face justice has not yet been settled by the Algerian government. The question of possible political refuge is perhaps more difficult to judge than mere ownership of money. But Algeria appears to be having a little difficulty with the unruly adventur-States - to whom it has already granted temporary asylum.

Perhaps this question, too, will be resolved in favor of the United States, and the glamor and profit will have withered as regards at least one possible safety zone for aircraft pirates. And what Algeria finds it right and expedient to do. other countries may also.

Defence Minister Edgar Benson seems a little precipitate in his suggestion that if cleaning fluid damage to the pipes and valves of the destroyer-escort Restigouche of taxpayers' money should be amounts to about $10 million which he doubts — then the vessel should be retired as one of four ships now under consideration.

Drawing the Arabs' Teeth

ISTANBUL, Turkey Sufficient numbers of Soviet aircraft have flown across the country recently from Egypt and enough transports have sailed northward through the Straits bearing men and equipment so that Turkey, a skeptical country, is now convinced a major shift is under way in Moscow's Mediterranean policy. Planes and ships must notify Ankara prior to passing through its territorial air or water.

The Turks don't talk about this openly because they prefer to be discreet with respect to their powerful Soviet neigh-Nevertheless, they feel the balance is changing to such a degree that the dangers of wargin this general region above all any conflict involving the superpowers - have been appreciably re-

Decrease in Confrontation

Foreign Minister Haluk Bayulken, a man not habitually given to audacious statements, says: "I now see a very important opportunity to solve the Middle East question peacefully. With recent developments I see a decrease in the sense of confrontation and an increase in the chances of negotiation.

Turkey has a very special interest in the entire Arab world because it once governed it in Ottoman Empire days and because it covers this country's soft underbelly, faced on the north by Russia. Bulgaria and a Soviet-dominated Black Sea. Turkey is the easternmost land in the NATO alliance and has been worried about pro-Moscow tendencies among its southern neighbors, Syria and Iraq, as well as by growing Soviet naval strength in the Mediterranean.

But now it feels an open rift is starting to develop between the U.S.S.R. and its former Arab clients. It sees President Sadat's expulsion of Russian forces from Egypt as part of a historical trend that has been marked by concurrently declining Soviet influence in Sudan, Libya, Algeria and Yemen, Indeed, Ankara would not be astonished to see a similar development before too long in Syria.

The Turks noted obvious hints dropped here earlier this year by Soviet President Podgorny. He indicated to them mistrust of the Arabs and scorn for military ability so far demonstrated against Israel. He acknowledged that the United States wished to arrange a Palestine settlement and didn't appear to oppose the thought. Moreover, Podgorny complained that

Russia felt it could not give Egypt the most modern arms unless these remained under direct Soviet control. Otherwise he feared another round of Palestine fighting might eventually erupt, ending in Arab disaster, and this prized equipment would again wind up in Israeli hands as in 1967. He made the cynical observation that no army could be judged merely by the way it paraded its weapons and said Nasser had protested: 'I don't see how we were defeated; we had all the proper weapons. The Turkish view is that this broad opinion must be related to fundamental Soviet policy problems. The Turks believe basic changes are slowly pressing Russia's political, economic and social outlook, changes stemming in part from the persistent infiltration of hitherto banned concepts of freedom and also from the rising insistence on more local liberty by Soviet ethnic groups.

Ankara suspects the alteration of the Mediterranean balance must be related to Moscow's primordial worry about China and to its consequent desire to ease tensions with the West, arriving at some kind of inferential status quo arrangement with NATO and above all the United States.

The Turks produce expert diplomats and specialize in analyzing Russian intentions and capabilities because, under both czars and commissars, they have always felt the greatest potential threat comes from the north.

Settlement Envisaged

Therefore, while viewing Mediterranean developments with painstaking caution, Ankara has come to believe that because of a visibly shrinking Soviet presence in the Arab world, the time has me not only for Western diplomatic suggestions to Syria that it too should shrug off any excessive Moscow tie, but also to urge on all parties in the Palestine war that a permanent settlement must now be envisaged.

Whatever precise ideas have been elaborated here are not being made public, but it is evident Turkey feels the moment is becoming ripe for a real break-through on the impasse between Israel and Egypt.

Should this prove possible, encouraged by secret diplomacy, it thought the other pieces of the Arab-Israeli jigsaw could subsequently be fitted in. Only then, for the first time in a quarter of a century, would Turkey no longer feel isolated by intermittent warfare, uneasiness and hostility along this country's naked south.

Crib Deaths

I am fairly certain that I can shed a little light on the subject of crib deaths. (Times, Aug. 21, page 17) My only real qualification is that I am a mother with thirteen years experience, but I am a good one

I am sure my youngest, now aged two, had an attack. About three times before this child reached the age of three months (I let her sleep on her back during some daytime naps because she obviously seemed to enjoy that position) she would give the tiniest of coughs and immediately turned red then bluish. I ran to her, flipped her around onto her tummy and patted her back because it seemed like the thing to do at the moment. She seemed to recover with no further signs of illness of any kind.

After she had done this the third time never permitted her on her back again until she had power to turn herself over. This I did and I never had a recurrence.

My theory, although I have no medical training, would be that somehow her saliva did not go down the way it is supposed to. It was not just after a feeding and she did not spit up at these times.

I hate to think what would have happened if I had put her to bed out of my sight since I am hard of hearing and would never have heard her tiny cough at night. I actually saw the cough rather than heard it.-Martha E. Likakur, 864 Colville Road.

Only the experience of Premier Bennett as a former Conservative kept them from "cutting their own throats.

So what right has Mr. Creighton to sneer at the other parties today? How gauche would he appear on entering politics I wonder?

Uncommitted new voters could upset the delicate balance in two of the three ridings in Wednesday's provincial election.

Surrey New Democratic Party MLA Ernie Hall hung on by his fingernails in 1969 with a 477 vote plurality over his Social Credit rival. Today there are 8,000 new eligible plus registered voters.

New Westminster Shaping as Closest Race in B.C.

NEW WESTMINSTER Political observers here are predicting this may be closest election race in the whole province on Aug. 30.

For 20 years New Westminster has been a CCF-NDP stronghold, from the stunning election of 1952 when an obscure union business agent — Rae Eddie — defeated Premier Byron Johnson.

After narrowly defeating Johnson, Eddie proceeded to up large majorities this blue collar city of 40,000 on the banks of the Fraser.

But in recent years the NDP margin has fallen election by election. In 1966 (the last year Eddie was a candidate) the NDP won by only 203 votes over Social Credit.

In 1969 the new NDP candidate Dennis Cocke held the riding by 119 votes.

Social Credit challenger John Edmondson is facing Cocke for the second time and after knocking on doors and shaking hundreds of hands, Edmondson's assessment is:

"It's going to be close. Boy! Is it going to be close! ....

Incumbent Cocke agrees. On the streets, there is no sign of a change in the air. Everyone is predicting another Bennett victory and few in this riding are changing their votes from last time.

That means that key lies with the 3,000 new voters, largely childless apartment dwellers the newly-wed and newly-retired.

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) - Federal authorities are ecstatic over an experimental fish-stocking program which Phillips, whose riding was represented by Don Marshall, the Socred who crossed to the Progressive Conservative ranks this year, took the brunt of the heckling, which seemed to come from a small minority in the predominantly Social Credit sudience of 150. Credit audience of 150.

"Before Social Credit," Phillips said, "the Peace River country was isolated."

'Yes. Now it's under water," a young man retorted, opening up an exchange on the merits of the W. A. C. Bennett added, and creates jobs for young people.

That dam, Phillips assured the audience, was visionary.

The issue of youth and its various merits and disadvantages in government was well aired by the three speakers.

Capozzi said, however, he didn't want to create any misimpressions — youth is necessary, but "we've become too youth-oriented." One of the biggest tragedies of modern society, he said, is the waste caused by "discarding people" and thus losing the benefits of their experience and capabilities.

Capozzi also brought up charges from the opposition that British Columbia is becoming a one-man dictatorship. Those charges are untrue, he said. The premier is strong, but Capozzi doesn't want "a government run by a weak lead-

McDiarmid also discussed the charges of dictatorship levelled in a series of newspaper advertisements recently.

"As long as you have instability, labor will ask for all it can get," he said.

Gorst countered by attacking Socred labor legislation.

He said the NDP would repeal Bill 33 and move to end the Mediation Commission in its present form.

MONTREAL (CP) Thursday that about 150 French tourists, stranded here when their charter flight home failed to materialize, will be able to leave on an Air France flight tonight.

But they will have to pay the full price of a basic ticket, ither in advance or after their return to France, if they have made arrangments with the French consulate here.

The local protesters were among 257 members of the Association of European Families scheduled to leave Wednesday night for Geneva and 251 members of the Canada Club Yverdon who had expected to go to Zurich Thursday.

They claim they made their bookings through the travel service, or its associates, who were to arrange two charter flights through Balair, a Swiss-based company.

Otto Gersbach, managing director of the airline, said

Thursday in an interview that he went to the travel service offices Tuesday night and seized tickets for the charter flights 24 hours before the first of them was to leave.

OIL TANKERS TRAVERSING B.C. WATERS PRESENT A VERY SERIOUS THREAT SHOULD COLLISION OCCUR. The oil refinery at CHERRY POINT, built at a cost of $150,000,000 WILL WITHOUT DOUBT BE RECEIVING OIL. Whether the oil comes from Alaska is not occt of $150,000,000 WILL WITHOUT DOUBT BE RECEST OF $150,000,000 WILL WITHOUT DOUBT BE RECEIVING OIL. Whether the oil comes from Alaska is not the point. Indeed the U.S. JONES ACT stipulates that oil shipped from one U.S. port to another U.S. port must be conveyed in U.S. ships by U.S. crews. This is much to be preferred to shipment of oil, from, say the Middle East, in Liberian or Panamanian tankers — flags of convenience—which are often in a deplorable state of decay, with limited, poorly trained crews, and run-down equipment.

THE CENTRAL FACT IS THAT OIL WILL BE BROUGHT BY TANKER TO CHERRY POINT, REGARD-LESS OF SOURCE, AND THESE TANKERS WILL TRAVERSE THE STRAIT OF, JUAN DE FUCA.

It is vital that the emphasis regarding PREVENTION OF OIL SPILLS be placed on MORE EFFICIENT SYSTEMS OF NAVIGATION, SAFER SHIPS, AND MORE HIGHLY TRAINED CREWS.

I have met with pilots who guide ships around our shores, to listen to their experience and suggestions. They are unanimous in proposing that control of shipping in coastal waters must be supervised in the same way that aircraft are guided and directed around our airports.

With modern technological resources it is clear the equipment and know-how exist to guide tankers safely around our shores.

Rotterdam has some of the largest refineries in the world, yet has not had a serious oil spill, due largely to the use of clearly defined lanes for inbound and outbound ships.

Other factors are important, such as the physical state of the ship, number and competency of the crew, crew fatigue from long hours on duty and vital equipment which is not functioning properly, such as gyro compass and steering reas.

is not functioning properly, such as gyro compass and steering gear.

Clearly a host of improvements is required, to ensure greater safety of ships in Canadian waters.

The POLICY OF A PROGRESIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT would be to seek joint meetings with the Canadian Federal government, the U.S. Federal Government and the State of Washington to develop SAFE, RELIABLE INTERNATIONALLY DEFINED SHIPPING LANES AND COMMUNICATION PRACTICES and if possible, ELIMINATE THE USE OF CANADIAN WATERS BY OIL TANKERS FLYING FLAGS OF CONVENIENCE. ONE FACT MUST BE FACED, OIL TANKERS ARE GOING TO BE TRAVERSING OUR WATERS, BE IT FROM ALASKA OR ELSEWHERE.

THE REAL CHALLENGE IS TO DEVELOP MODERN EFFICIENT METHODS OF NAVIGATION AND COMMUNICATION, IN SOUND SHIPS, WITH WELL TRAINED CREWS.

One of Canada's richest provinces has 71,000 unemployed.

Guess which one?

British Columbia. God's country. Filled with forests, minerals, lakes, natural resources. And thousands of unemployed people! People who want to work, would work, but can't find work. Because there just aren't any jobs. Raw materials from primary industries leave our province daily, creating thousands of jobs in foreign could be developed right here in British Columbia. And create a lot of new jobs for our own people. But the government doesn't seem interested in doing a thing about it.

It's time somebody did something about it. Took a long hard look at the problem and came up with strong, realistic answers. And did it fast. Because unemployment has reached a crisis point. Dave Barrett and the NDP believe that everyone who wants to work, should work. That a job is not a privilege, but a right. And one that every British Columbian should enjoy. Because it's pretty hard to appreciate all those mountains and lakes and that ocean when you're worned about not having a pay cheque.

Tell them enough is enough.

B.C. needs a New Deal for People.

Afton Rushed Into Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — The lawyer for Teck Corp, Ltd. contended in British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday that the three-original directors of Afton Mines rushed into a contract with Canadian Exploration Ltd. in order to deprive a group of Afton shareholders of their rights.

Teck Counsel Jack Glies said Teck wants the contract, which gave Canex the right to develop Afton copper property in the Kamloops area, declared invalid.

Teck, which now holds a majority of Afton shares, is suing Sanex and the three original Afton directors, Chester F. Millar, Douglas L. Price and John Haramboure, in the action which began Thursday.

The case is being heard before Mr. Justice Thomas R.

Gas First Choice

CALGARY (CP) — Natural gas will become the prime fuel source for generating electricity in Alberta before the end of the century, says a brief prepared by the Electric Utility Planning Council.

Uncertainty and external factors beyond the control of utilities could affect the relative cost of other sources, making hydro, nuclear power coal economically unfeasible coal deposits with favorable economics have been developed for power generating

'Similar undeveloped deposits are limited, if not unlikely, and future coal sup-plies will be much costlier han now being used."

The brief, prepared for the from Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd. Northwestern Utilities Ltd. estimate total gas needs, excluding that for power generation, to be 11.4 trillion cubic feet to the year 2001.

Submissions from Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Imperial Oil Ltd. estimated the demand for energy would increase at a rate between 4.5 and 5.3 per cent a year for the 30 years following 1970.

Gulf predicted the total energy demand would more than double on a per-capita basis before the end of the next century with the consumption of petroleum in Alberta increasing to 99 million barrels a year from 38 million barrels two years ago.

Bus Grants Hiked

CALGARY (CP) - The provincial government has in-creased by 10 per cent grants to school boards for busing students, so empty inner-city classrooms can be filled, Education Minister Lou Hyndman said Wednesday.

Under recent regulation changes, city school board can receive an extra $4.50 yearly per student bused and rural school boards can claim an additional $9.50.

On Wednesday

per cent of the voting capital stock of all securities firms

Owners of a non-conforming service station at Finlayson and Cedar Hill Road Thursday were granted rezoning to make a proposed expansion of the premises possible, but will have to stop doing major truck repair work.

City council gave final passage to a bylaw amendment on behalf of A. S. and J. M. Willock, of Willock's Service Garage, 3134 and 3140 Cedar Hill Road, whose service station has been there since 1945, before current zoning was in-

Ratepayers here are urged to fill out questionaires being fill out questionaires being circulated by the Advisory Planning Commission "so that we can find out the wants of all of the people," chair-man Bernard Falconberg said

Falconberg said it is important to establish priorities before the commission can make recommendations to the Cowichan Valley Regional

After all of the questionaires have been received and the wants, objections and suggestions by ratepayers have been compiled, Falconberg said a public meeting will be held with Shawnigan Lake residents in the fall to discuss them.

Since the commission began circulating the questionaire in the form of a letter six weeks ago, with some people still receiving them, Falconberg said he has received 70 replies. "We hope to receive at least 150," he said.

Anyone that hasn't received questionaire can just put their opinions and wants for Shawnigan Lake in a letter and forward it to Falconberg, Shawnigan Lake Electoral area "B", Shawnigan Lake, priorities already stated in returned letters are; control over noisy power boats and irresponsible boating; organized water for summer homes; land use regarding new subdivisions around the lake; pollution in the lake mainly caused by faulty sep-tic tanks and an improved road system.

Saanich Lifts Suspension Of Detective

A police commission hearing will be held some time in October in the case of Saanich Detective James White, 35, suspended after he vas charged with common assault in connection with a beer parlor incident.

White's suspension, imposed when the charge was laid, was lifted after his acquittal on the charge. The suspension had been with pay.

Chief Robert Peterson said

today White is back on duty. The chief had wanted to hold an inquiry as early as possi-ble, and had scheduled one for this afternoon, but one of the principal witnesses is not going to be available until the middle of October, Peterson

A finance committee recomnendation last week that Victoria end its operating grant of $4,467 to University of Victoria Centennial Stadium was referred to a special meeting of the supporting municipalities — Victoria. Saanich and Oak Bay.

Ald. Ove Witt suggested the matter be turned over to inter-municipal committee for study, but the mayor said a meeting of the parties had already been requested by Mayor Frances Elford, of Oak Bay. Pollen said the commitrecommendation have been an error.

Council approved a maximum outlay of $6,000 for a Causeway feasibility study for the second phase of improvement leading to a promenade below street level.

Pollen said the study is needed if there is to be a design concept development. Preliminary examination in-dicates there could be a saving of $100,000 - $150,000 through an alternative system

Participation of the Capital Improvement District Commission will be sought, proba-

Main considerations to be followed will be preservation of old residential areas, selec-

Publisher Urges Western Bank

EDMONTON (CP) — A Western Canadian Bank which would help meet the urgent needs of the three Prairie provinces was advocated Thursday by Mel Hurtig, a Liberal candidate in the next federal election.

Hurtig, a noted publisher who also is co-chairman of who also is co-chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada, said in a news release the bank's priority should be funds to aid small and medium-sized businesses owned by Canadians.

Initial capital would come from the federal government of Albert and the governments of Albert.

and the governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba — $9 million from Ottawa and $3 million from each of the provinces.

"Subsequently, shares in the bank would be available only to Canadians and in small denominations to effect the eventual objective of broadly-based ownership in the bank. No individual or company would be allowed to own more than one per cent of the bank's shares."

He said each Prairie prov-ince would elect three direc-tors to the bank which would be prohibited from lending funds to non-Canadians or to companies under foreign con-

"At the same time," he said, "banking in Canada has become a very profitable

"From 1967 to 1971, bank profits increased substantially every year for a total five-year increase of over 100 per cent while, by comparison, other business in Canada registered a 23-per-cent crease."

He said bank profits were $557 million last year, twice as much as the profits in 1967, but the west still is being short-changed by Canadian banking.

The department has written the board, promising to correct that situation this year, she said.

"But we want to meet with the deputy minister because we aren't sure if that means this year or not."

At its Tuesday night meeting the board agreed the Trans-Canada Highway and Millstream Road crossing is also dangerous.

There is a warning light at the intersection "but we want a stop light there," said Reader.

Other areas of concern are near the Happy Valley School and at the corner of Glen Lake and Glennan Roads.

Trustees said problems will arise at the Colwood Elementary school because the Sooke Road there has been widened to a four-lane

"Maybe if we can get the deputy minister out there to take a look at the situation something will be done about it," she said.

Seawall Plan Under Way

Blasted rock bought from contractors and stockpiled over the past year started to go into place this week in the first phase of an erosion protection project at Mt. Douglas Park beach.

A rough access was bull-dozed down the steep bank enabling large pieces of rock to be placed against its foot where winterstorms and runoff water have been eroding at high tide level.

Ald. William Noel, a Saan-ich member of the Victoria-Saanich Mount Douglas Park committee, said about 200 feet of the worst part of the beach is being protected in the first

Rock is being placed in an excavation down to blue clay and eight feet wide, which will be back-filled with smaller rock and gravel up to Surface water and waves washed away much of the bank over several winters, both within the park boundary and at the foot of private pro-perties adjoining Mt. Douglas.

Some residents indicated they would take advantage of the park project to engage the bulldozer for rock-moving to protect their banks.

Violence in Fantasyland -The Evil of the Tube

It seems so obvious now, in hindsight, that I would like to say that I recognized from the very beginning that television would have a shattering effect on the minds of children. 7

Fact is, I thought just the opposite. On that memorable day when the tiny screen first lit up in our living room it seemed to me that it might open a window on the world for the young, that, however poor the programming might be, its cumulative effect would be educational and that the child, more than the adult, would be a selective, discerning viewer. How wrong can a man be?

What could not be foreseen then was that television would become so commercial, so crassly competitive in the ratings game, that it would develop into a mind-clobbering, tasteless, repetitive exercise in false values and violence during the so-called "prime time" periods. With very few exceptions the quality programs, those which might have the effect of broadening a child's mind, are scheduled after the child's bed-time.

It couldn't be foreseen, either, that so many children would become habitual, hypnotic viewers, content to watch almost anything so long as it contains action. Thus the latest ratings in this particular area indicate that two programs at the 5:30 time slot, Get Smart and Hogan's Heroes, each with a high quotient of violence in the name of comedy, have massive audie

Pediatricians and child psychologists are all but unanimous in their concern that this passivity — "the passivity that requires all activity to be produced for them, not by them," as one describes it — has a damaging, retarding effect on a thild's mental and emotional development.

That conclusion has been demonstrated in several clinical studies. What is less easy to document is the overwhelming traumatic twisting of a child's hidden fantasy that a sustained daily diet of television may cause. If it's true, as Dr. Spock and many another child specialist believe it to be, that an adult's character is shaped by that immensely private inner world of the child's imaginative day-dreams, what grotesque thoughts are planted there from that evil little screen?

Dr. T. Berry Brazelton, an American pediatrician, has some chilling words on precisely that subject. They're words that every parent of a young boy or girl should pin up as a reminder somewhere close to the magic eye.

By the time a child is five or six years old, his fantasies are already as violent as those in any horror movie adults might construct, and his sexual fantasies can match anything presented in a grade C movie in Dr. Brazelton's opinion.
"The violence and adult forms of sexuality displayed on television mobilize these fantasies together with all the fear and anxiety that go with them."

"It comes down to the fact that television gives a child two choices — he can actively suppress his feelings or he can ineffectually play them out. No wonder, then, that a child comes away from a set believing that physical violence is a perfectly acceptable form of self-expression."

For parents whose childhood was spent in the days before the living room screen, whose fantasies generally came from books and more often than not were romantic or heroic, it's hard to grasp the idea that their offspring have just as vivid and compelling dreams that now originate almost entirely in

know exactly what they're being exposed to.

There are some who believe that a direct link may be established between television violence and violence in the street and I'm not sure that it's too far-fetched. The romantic fantasies of Arthur Bremer, convicted in the attempted assassination of Governor George Wallace, centred about the actress, Donna Reed, his "TV mother." Isn't it as likely that his homicidal fantasies came from the same blood-and-guts dream

Perhaps there's some slight cause for hope in the increas ing criticism, notably from women's groups, now being directed against the networks in the United States. One token response to that has been an up-grading of afternoon programs specifically designed for the very young.

Until public opinion makes that alternative a reality, however, it remains entirely the responsibility of the parents with mighty few signs that they're willing to accept it.

Sign Ban Passed: sm Included

Final approval of the controversial sign bylaw was given Thursday by city council, ignoring a last - ditch attempt to get an exemption for the tourist industry.

W. T. Fraser, Vancouver Island district manager for Neon Products Ltd. and Seaboard Advertising Ltd. who spoke also for Bayliss Sign Ltd., argued for amendment of the bylaw to exempt third party advertising on behalf tourist businesses.

Otherwise, he said, reiterating a presentation to alderin committee, there would be a hardship for some to direct trade.

The bylaw would eliminate 27 such signs and leave six in

Aldermen heard Fraser by unanimous consent even though the bylaw had been through three readings, then confirmed passage at the end of the meeting.

BOBSLEDDERS SKID OUT, OARSWOMEN (GET THAT) IN!

MUNICH (CP) — Olympic officials decided Thursday to drop the four-man bobsied event from the program of the 1976 Winter Games in Denver, Colo., as too costly to stage. Conservationists also had objected to tearing up the Colorado countryside to build a new course.

Canada won a gold medal in the four-man competition in 1964, the first time Canadians entered the event, but did not win medals in 1968 and 1972.

The International Olympic Committee, winding up its business before the opening of the 1972 Summer Games Sat-urday, refused to switch the four-man bobs to Lake Placid, N.Y., site of the only bobsled run in North America.

But if Canadians lost a chance for medals on the sleds, they will have several extra ones if they can find enough female carsmen to compete in Montreal for the 1976 Summer

The IOC added a full program of women's rowing events to the program in Montreal, breaking tradition in Olympic rowing which always has been strictly for men.

Avery Brundage, outgoing president of the IOC, said the four-man bebs were struck from the Denver venue mainly because of the prohibitive cost of building a one-mile course.

Brundage noted it cost $2 million to build a four-man course at the Sappore Winter Games. It cost $1 million to tear it down and rebuild the landscape.

The Russians: Boy, Are They in Shape!

Coach Harry Sinden of Team Canada (or is it Hockey Canada) probably put the whole thing in its proper perspective: "I wish I had more time," he said this week of the training program for the NHL All-Stars who will meet the Russian National hockey team in an eight-game series pretty soon now.

What Harry was saying was that the fat cats of Team Canada, impressive and as good as they are, had better not take the Russians too lightly. Ivan will be in better physical condition than any Canadian.

The danger is, Sinden was suggesting, is that just because we invented the game of hockey, more or less, it doesn't necessarily follow that other people can't play the sport better, and that conditioning may be the factor that the Russians are backing on to prove it.

So be warned. And be careful, too, of the low key Soviet approach to the series

"We never said we thought we could win," said one of the Soviet officials watching a Team Canada practice in Toronto this week. "We just asked for the chance to play."

There's the real tipoff. Because Ivan isn't ever allowed to play internationally, unless he can do very well, and not be

John Ferguson, the assistant Team Canada coach, was ecently in Russia, and he hasn't been one of those who have been predicting any sweep for the NHL All-Stars.

John, rather, has said that he was very impressed with the Russian teaching and training methods, and that they were years ahead of Canada in this regard.

They Should Have Listened to Larry

Larry Regan of the Los Angeles Kings said the same things Not many listened to Larry then, even though he was one of the first NHL managers to go to Russia on a fact-finding hockey tour. They should have, for it was Regan who predicted then that Russia eventually would challenge and perhaps even surprise the NHL.

"The Russian National Team could beat most of the NHL teams right now," he said as late as last year.

Just the other day, two more qualified observers warned that Russia isn't in this thing to lose.

Herb and Gerry Pinder, former Canadian National players, have predicted some major eyebrow lifting before the series is

"The Russians will have an edge in conditioning," said Herb. "and the timing, in September, definitely favors them." This view parallels the Sinden thinking - there is no substitute for hard work. Now!

The Pinders also said that they played against the NHL and the Russians, many times, and did better against the NHL.
Besides, the final four games are in Moscow, and in the wider arena there, it may be Team Canada that finds itself at a disadvantage. It is an all-together different ball game.

So much for the bad news. Now for the good. stars had been reading all the other glowing press reports, perhaps their training camp had been lethargic as a result. Allan Eagleson, head of the NHL Players Association, is on ing a series sweep for Canada. Eagleson became highly nationalistic even before-his private protege Bobby Orr, donned skates for a leisurely drill this week. "We will win, eight games to nothing," he is reported as saying. With Orr, then, only the score will be in doubt.

That's fine for morale, but Eagleson never played hockey, or against the Russians. Did he?

First, the Dennis Hull Slapshot

Well then, how about John McLellan and Bob Davidson of the Leafs? They went to Russia to scout the opposition, have recently returned, anticipate no problems. But not a clean

They're not better, in any way," is the consensus of their public report. What they have said in private to Sinden and Ferguson may be a Soviet of another matter.

Because there was some hedging. "You can't take them lightly," said McLellan. "They can skate, and boy, they're in

There's that phrase again: "Boy, they're in shape." That's the key to the Russian hope chest. And when you are in shape you can play it just as rough as the other country; and The Where then will the series be decided?

In goal, is the general opinion that pervades all talk of the series. Even the Russian coaches who studied the Team Canada workouts agree. They consider the NHL goalkeepers "very good" and with "quick hands."

Other observers have said that the Russian goalkeeping is weak, in comparison, and that they don't particularly like high shots. Davidson and Mclellan concurred with this view.

This prompted Chicago's Stan Mikita to suggest:
"In the first 10 seconds, why don't we have Dennis Hull wind up and crank a slapshot around the Russian goaltender's

Southern Island Salmon Biting Most Consistently

Except for a few noteworthy exceptions, southern Vancrop" at the present moment.

And, at the risk of sounding a little monotonous, we must again rate the Sooke to Pedder Bay region as the most consistently productive area on the Island.

Otter Point and Secretary Island waters are yielding coho up to 101/2 pounds on bucktail flies along with a few big springs, 4 Strip and minnow are hauling in springs up to 32½ pounds and flashtails have pulled in coho up to 11½ pounds near Beechey Head and, to a lesser extent, Church Island. One problem encountered by light tackle fishermen after coho therabouts involves catching under-sized grilse — so take care!

Action in Pedder Bay picked up Wednesday after a slight slump earlier this week, Green and white flashtails fished in The Race on the flood tide have produced coho up to 12 pounds. Use from no weight at all to 12 ounces.

The kelp side of Pedder Bay is still yielding springs (largest this week was 32 pounds) along with a pientiful number of jacks. Most successful fishermen have found that one-and-ahalf pounds of weight and strip or minn

"Fairly good" fishing is reported from Trial Island to Ten-Mile Point with springs tipping the scales up to 26 pounds and the odd coho weighing as much as 51/2 pounds.

Stewart Devlin of Kelowna, a 12-year-old, topped adult anglers on the Lakewood in that area recently when he pulled in a Saanich Inlet contains a large number of jacks in the two to five pound range. Larger springs may be found near Bamberton, Goldstream Island and Misery Bay — all up to 20 pounds.

Try 200 feet of line and a planer early in the morning The odd five-to-six-pound coho has also been taken by lighttackle fishermen in the same general locations.

Further up-Island, Cowichan Bay is giving up springs to moochers working spots from Separation Point to in front of the mouth of the Cowichan River. These fish, which tip the scales up to 35 pounds, are mixed in with the odd coho (one weighed 19.02 pounds) and a few pinks Tent Island is another good choice for any anglers wishing to try their luck north of the Malahat.

Trollers off Snake Island and strip-casters working near Ballenas and Sangster islands are making the best of spotty returns around Nanaimo.

Tyee-sized springs up to 48 pounds are now turning up closer to Port Alberni, Strip has been the favored bait near Nahmint while Alaska plugs are picking up lunkers close to China Creek. Down the Inlet, on the Bamfield side, some lucky fishermen are landing coho up to 15 pounds along with nu-

Fishing in both the Courtenay and Campbell River areas has dropped off with only spotty returns showing near Comox Bar, Little River, Duncan Bay and Race Point. That is not to say the odd large fish hasn't been taken, but in terms of fish per boat, action was cool.

Muchalat Inlet is producing tyee between Nesook Bay and Galiano Bay in Tiupana Inlet as well as at the mouth of the Gold River but success must be gained through diligent effort as well as the ability to be in the right place at the right time.

Best trout angling success on the Island this week seems to come from the larger lakes such as Comox, where cutthroats up to six pounds have been caught recently by trolling plugs near the mouth of the Cruickshank River.

NIBBLES: Young fishermen under the age of 16 are reminded of the annual Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association junior derby on Sunday . . . Hours are from dawn to noon and no fee is required to enter . . . All fish down to the legal limit can be weighed in for a multitude of prizes, including a five-speed bike donated by the Victoria Times for the largest salmon . . . Although the derby is open to anyone, only a VSIAA junior can win the Ronnie Sadler Memorial Trophy . . . Free pop and ice cream will be available and prize presentations will be made at Anglers' Anchorage Marina sometime between 12:30 and 1 p.m.

Archery enthusiasts get a two-week jump on the deer-huntling season starting Saturday . . . The regular rifle season on bucks opens Sept. 9 but anyone having the proper equipment can bag a buck with bow and arrow during this two-week period and during another week from Dec. 4 to 10 after the regular season ends ... LONDON (CP) - Most of to sip from cups decorated with roses. At least, that's the way it seems to Harold Holdcroft whose Old Country Roses design has become the world's biggest selling pattern in bone china with sales of 14 million pieces.

Pottery designer Holdcroft said in an interview: "We design hoping we will get business from all parts of the world." And he finds that certain factors are constant throughout the world, apart from a fondness of roses.

He uses plenty of gold, stippled gradually into the design to blend smoothly. Then there are warm colors — a rich red for most of the roses and gold has to be used in making this color too.

Holdcroft is art director of Royal Albert, whose designs are produced by Allied English Potteries Ltd.

His other roses are tea roses, in warm peachy yellows. Even the greens used in the foliage are warm greens. This color warmth is combined with a semi-naturalistic look, but does not follow one particular named rose in every single detail.

The unusually frank poll disclosed that a large proportion of Poles—and those ques-tioned were mainly well-educated— saw the country's administrative system as "in effective or simply wrong."

Many cited low wages and mismanagement of the econ-omy as justification for brib-ery of officials.

Surprisingly, most of those questioned said the theft of state property did not merit punishment. On the other hand, the vast majority thought stealing private property was a crime which should be punished.

"A shirt is closer to the body, but the difference in approach to private and social property was too striking; the problem is much wider than passivity and indifference—its social consequences are some-times disastrous," said the of-ficially-controlled weekly.

The feelings of the majority of Polish society.

The toughest question was the proposition that bribes were necessary "to settle anything." About 80 per cent thought that this was true.

Making its point, Polityka carried a large picture showing a fistful of banknotes being furtively slipped into another hand. The front-page headline was "Where does the property that this was true."

BUTCHART GARDENS — Known the world over for its incredible beauty . . . tops Victoria's summer entertainment season with its smashing stage shows . . . romantic night lighting . . . spectacular Ross Fountains . . . Flora Restaurant . . Begonia Bower . . . Show greenhouse . . . fascinating seed and gift shop. Open every day 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

BUTCHART GARDENS — New and excitingly different week after week, season after season. Dedicated gardeners, skilful planning, constant replanting keeps them that way. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired gardens. Embracing over 30 acres, actually six gardens in one — fabulous Sunken, spectacular Ross Fountain Garden, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, the great Stage Show Garden (now in full swing) and the English Rose Garden!

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING—As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers—a spectacle so unusual, so grand, it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars."

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT - Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful buffet suppers in the evening. Continuous snack and coffee bar service.

Day Care:

Candidates Give Views On Controversial Issue

By SUSAN RUTTAN Times Staff

Day care is almost - but not quite — a motherhood issue with local candidates in the upcoming provincial elec-

All candidates queried this week by the Times said they were "for" day care.

But their support for the issue ranges from grudging admission to the need for day care for some mothers, all the way up to advocacy of free, 24-hour-a-day day care for everyone as a solution to pressing social problems.

At one end of the spectrum, is Dr. Howard McDiarmid, 45 Social Credit candidate in Oak

Woman's Place

'I'd hate to see us set up a lot of day care centres to en-courage mothers to go to work," said McDiarmid.

"I'm not in favor of women working if they don't have to ... I believe that a woman's place is in the home with the kids." Even women who are the sole support of their children would be better off they could work out of the home, said McDiarmid.

In the case of women who. must go to work, their children are better off with a neighbor or grandmother than in a formal day care centre, he said.

"I don't think kids do well in institutionalized surroundings" such as day care centres, McDiarmid said. He opposes free day care because it would encourage mothers to go to work.

"What I don't want to see is the government sort of encouraging women to leave home," he said.

At the other end of the spectrum is Kathleen Ruff. 32. Democratic Party candidate in Victoria.

The free 24-hour-a-day day care centres the NDP has promised to finance would not only give mothers on welfare a chance to get out of the house and back into a job, but would do their children enormous good, said Mrs. Ruff.

'The best investment a government can make is to give these children a decent start in life," she said:

Children from welfare homes fall into a rut before they reach elementary school that destines many of them to become welfare cases themselves some day, she said. The new environment a day care centre would give the child could break that rut, she

"The whole key to breaking down poverty and delinquency is in the children," said Mrs. Ruff.

All provincial candidates received a letter last week from the Ad Hoc Committee on Day Care and the B.C. Status of Women Council, asking them to state their positions

There are 105,000 children in B.C., aged 13 and under, whose mothers work, the let-

At present the provincial government gives some financial help to non-profit day care centres — $1 per day for each child not already sub-sidized by the government. This daily rate is raised to $2 for the first three months of the centre's operation

Helps Poor

As well, the government pays all or part of day care fees for women whose income is below a certain level, up to $3.40 a day per child.

The Times asked candidates in the four local ridings to respond to the letter.

Waldo Skillings, 65, incum-

Skillings opposes free day care for all because some people can afford to pay for it, he said.

"We want to help those who really need care, but I don't think we should go to the Russian system.'

Skillings concluded: "Don't bother my good friend Newell Morrison, because he's never sat in the House and he doesn't have any of the an-

'Certainly I can foresee that that is a field I'd like to go into," he said.

state For normal wear, soft contact lenses have one big advantage over the usual hard they're immediatly lenses comfortable, said Darimont. There is no breaking-in period of sore and watering eyes with soft lenses.

But despite the comfort factor, soft lenses are not for everybody, he said.

"The lenses have got to be maintained in a much more disciplined way (than ordi-nary hard lenses)," Darimont said. They must be sterilized daily and be kept in a solution of salt and water in the same proportions as tears.

Dangers of contamination of soft lenses are quite high, the optometrist added. 'The lenses can be contaminated by undesirable chemicals by lack of discipline in personal use." Darimont said. Soft lenses are hydrophilic, said Darimont. When wet, they are 40 per cent water, and they soak up any moisclude ointments, cosmetics, substances from unclean substances which hands will go into the eye when the lenses are put on.

Also, these lenses cannot yet be used for people with astigmatism, an irregular curvature of the eye, he said. So Diarimont is still prescrib ing the hard or corneal lenses as well as soft lenses. Darimont made his first pair of contact lenses in 1942, not long after the first lenses anywhere were made.

Made in 1508

But the idea of contact lenses—improving vision by placing a false cornea over the real one—goes back to Leonardo da Vinci, who made sketches of such lenses in 1508. However, not until 1938, was a clear plastic developed that was suitable for making contact lenses.

The first covered both the white and iris of the eye (the colored part), resting on the white part and not touching

'That's all they dared do at the time," said Darimont,

Because they covered the whole eye, these lenses interfered with the normal breathing of the eye. After three or four hours of wear, a person's eyes would cloud over and he - that suits him. would have to remove them However, said Darimont, they did serve a limited purpose for athletes and actors.

"Then in the late 40s, because of this breathing problem, they made the corneal lens," he said. This lens, much smaller, rested only on the iris.

The corneal lens also had its problems—the first ones tended to dig into the cornea and dint it—but in the last 20 years many different types of good corneal lenses have been developed, said Darimont. Corneas are as unique in each person as fingerprints, said Darimont, so no one cor neal lens will do for all peo-

Contact lenses aren't really an alternative to glasses.

Darimont said — "they are supplementary to them." He advises people to wear lenses only for eight hours at a time then take them out for an hour and use glasses.

No Problem

With this kind of use, and with annual check-ups at the optometrist, contact lenses should pose no problem, he said. You should be able, if you have normal eyes, to wear them all your life."

Counselling Required For Serious Problem

DEAR ABBY: I have had a problem bottled up inside of me for the last two years and I am so ashamed of it, I just have to tell someone.

I just HATE babies! I don't know why, but I want to hurt them. Isn't that ridiculous? I want to overcome this terrible fault, but I can't. I kept a neighbor's baby today and abused her so badly I was disgusted with myself. I hit her and pinched her, and knocked her around, and just let her cry. I didn't want to feed her either. She's not the only baby I have feel so bad, I just sit and cry.

me? Could it he that someone treated me that way onc when I was a baby? If so, I can't remember. I have a six-year-old child of my own and I swear to you when she was small I never mistreated her once. So why am I this way to other people's babies? I am so afraid that as a punishment God will take my. precious child away from me. Please help me, Abby. I am a 28-year-old, healthy, educated married woman—Trembling. DEAR TREMBLING: You need to talk this problem out treated this way. Afterwards I with a professional counselor. The fact that you recognize the problem and are seeking a solution, proves that you are a good person. Talk in your doctor about it, and he will recommend the proper counseling for you. And in the meantime, please stay away from babies! God bless and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a friend who accepted an expensive wedding present, then wrote to say "The wedding has been called off 'for the time being,' because I had some second thoughts — but the gift you gave me looks great in my apartment! And since I'm still dating the guy, we might still get married later."
She closed with, "I don't know what the etiquette books say in cases like this, but if you know, please tell me. Puzzled in N.Y.

DEAR PUZZLED: Tell her the etiquette books say that when the wedding has been called off, the wedding gifts should be returned.

section of psychiatry of the B.C. Medical Association said this week that doctor shortages at mental institutions must be overcome if tragedies such as the one which resulted in the Vancouver slaying of Dr. Lily Chan by a mental patient last week are to be prevented.

"The few psychiatrists working in institutions are so overloaded and overwhelmed by the numbers of patients that they themselves are subjected to great pressures in their decision-making," the section said in a statement.

Dr. F. C. Hanley, chairman the section of psychiatry, said pressure on psychiatrists can only be relieved by overcoming the shortage of psy-chiatrists in our institutions.

"A more equitable level of payment to psychiatrists will help to provide adequate staff and prevent further deterioration in the level of care of patients with its attendent dangerous consequences," he each day of the year as they become acquainted with the na-wild roses in June, you will now find the fruits (or hips) into a vitamin-rich jelly or syrup for use in winter with meat or desserts. The rose-hip is edible, but strain out the seeds

More familair are the fruits of blackberries in hedges and ditches. If you wonder why these plants colonize so freely along fences, against buildings and along the route of overhead wires, watch where the birds congregate in fall. There you find the answer. They too feed on ripe blackberries.

It is possible to keep the vines under control by treating them the same as loganberries or boysenberries. Cut out all the long canes after picking the fruit from them. Train to wires, or simply leave to grow, only the number of new ones wanted for next year's fruit.

If you want to improve the flavor and size of blackberries, mulch the root area with old manure and bracken. Give one thorough soaking of several hours just after the fruits have formed — usually about early to middle of July.

Another native plant you may have on your woodland property is Oregon-grape, noticeable in May for clusters of bright yellow, bell-shaped blossoms. These evergreen shrubs grow from one to three feet, with foliage made up of from three to 21 leaflets extending in pairs from a central leaf

Taken separately, the leaflets distinctly resemble holly leaves but lack the sharpness of the points. One native variety has shiny surfaces, another is dull on both sides but the same shape and general habit persists.

Just now, the Oregon-grape (Berberis species) is hanging with blue berries showing a light waxy surface over the dark blue beneath. They look very much like small black currants or blueberries.

Bombay Launches Big Cleaning Job

By RAM SUNDAR Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) - A largescale cleanliness drive has been launched in this metropolis of nearly six million.

Every morning hundreds of housewives, students, bu-sinessmen and factory workers troop out of their homes armed with brooms and buckets. Their slogan is: "Bombay is ours. Keep it beautiful.' During weekends as many as 10,000 citizens take part in the cleanliness movement.

Housewives who have never walked along a city street for more than a few yards now spend hours washing pave-ments and cleaning up choked

Suhasini Ghate, 56, the wife of a textile worker, walked 13 miles on a Saturday collecting rags and pieces of paper from streets.

"There is no use expecting the city government to keep Bombay clean and healthy." she said. "It has not enough garbage vans to do the job. Moreover, the authorities are always plagued with labor

Students from a dozen Bombay colleges have joined the drive in a big way. They include hundreds of delicatelooking girls.

'If we depend on the municipal authorities, Bombay will remain dirty for years to come," said 19-year-old Gul-shan Mehta, the daughter of a millionaire businessman. The citizens must take up the challenge. Leaving her Italian sports car in the garage, Miss Mehta walked two miles to Chowpatty beach and started collecting all the leftovers from the food kiosks in a basket. To curious onlookers, she said: "Why do you keep star-ing? Please join me in cleaning up this place." Nearly 30 people responded to her appeal.

Some college students are helping municipal sweepers in cleaning up underground drains —perhaps the most hated job in the sanitation de-

Meanwhile, Mrs. Ali Yawar Jung, wife of the governor of Bombay, has set up a commit-tee to keep selected areas of the city free from heaps of

Mrs. Jung is particularly keen that people should not throw refuse out of their win-

She thought of setting up the citizens' committee when a garbage "missile" almost landed on her as she and the governor were having an early morning stroll on Malabar Hill, the city's aristocratic district.

That even aristocrats did not know how to dispose of their garbage has convinced the former Indian princess about the need for a mass campaign.

(0)WA(0)ST HEALTH SERVICES FOR PEOPLE OF ALL INCOMES

In the vital area of health services, it's not enough that the facilities and quality of care be of the highest order. It's also necessary that these services be readily available to all people, regardless of income or means. The Social Credit Government has always believed in this principle - that's why today every British Columbian has access to the finest in health services.

British Columbia residents enjoy firstlass general hospital care at a rate of only $1 per day. This low rate has remained stable, despite the fact that expenditures for hospital services have increased by more than 250% in the past 10 years.

As for medical care . . . the British Columbia Medical Plan is an outstanding success, with over 99% of our population now voluntarily enrolled. To ensure that all British Columbians enjoy the finest in modern medical care, the Provincial Government pays from 50 to 90% of premiums for low-income families . . . and 100% of premiums for those on social assistance.

First-rate hospital and medical care is just one of the benefits provided by a Government that pursues policies for all the people of British Columbia. It's something to remember on August 30th.

Isle of Man Tax Haven

By RICHARD WAGSTAFF

DOUGLAS, Islele of Mann (AP)—This island in the Irish Sea miday between Liverpool and Belfast was known a few years back as a quaint tourist spot with international motorraces, tailless horse-drawn street cars, fourhorned sheep and birch-whipping of wayward youth.

Today, thanks to easy taxes, it is getting a new image as a haven for the retired and wealthy. It has become a centre of first-rate insurance companies and brokerage houses

Preparing for association with the European Common Market through Britain, the self-governing island is determined to keep preferred tax status for its 50,000 citizens.

So far, the Isle of Man has been accepted by the market as a special case. People hope that settles the question. "I think we're too small for Europe to worry much about us," one official commented.

Residents are proud both of their British queen and of their long tradition of local autonomy.

While British, they want it clear they are not English, Welsh, Scottish nor Irish.
They are Manx. They boast the word's longest continuing Parliament, dating to the 10th

For more than a decade the maximum income tax has been 22½ per cent of earn-standard rate of nearly twice that and up to 97 per cent for income over $24,000 a year. Deductions are generous and many Manx pay no taxes at all.

London is only 55 minutes by air and there are no passport or customs controls. Some legal residents of the Isle of Man find no obstacles to spending most of their time

A: Oh yes, but you have to watch closer these days. He doesn't star anymore, but he's still. busy with character

Q: I enjoyed the TV shows Ben Casey and Doctor Kildare. Are they scheduled to come back on the air soon? If what time and channel?-L.M.

A: Casey is long gone, but a new syndicated version of Kildare will start this fall, with Mark Jenkins as a mod, young Kildare and Gary Mer-rill as Dr. Gillespie. The new Kildare show is being sold city-by-city across the country for prime time broadcast. You'll have to check your own logs to find out when and —R.T.

A: He's 78 and he's been making movies for 51 years. Brennan lost his teeth when very young, so even in his early 30s he could take out his choppers, suck in his lips and play old men parts. That's why it seems he's been an old man on the screen for the past 100 years.

Q: Will the Ding-a-Lings still be regulars on Dean Mar-tin's show this fall? And will Sixth Sense return? — H.P.

A: Yes, the Ding-a-Lings and Sixth Sense will be back, but the Ding-a-Lings have un-dergone a big change. Only two of the four girls from last season are with the unit. Two new girls, one black and one Japanese, have been added.

The World We Live In

Will man, the most clever and complicated being on earth, ever be able to manipulate his biological destiny? Riddle Of Heredity, the final program of the current summer series The World We Live In, examines this intriguing question, Sunday, Sept. 3 at 2 p.m., in color, on CBC television.

The half-hour program traces genetics, the science of life, from its beginnings nearly 400 years ago, when a Dutch scientist first observed micro-organisms in his primitive microscope, through the discovery of the male sperm cell and the female egg cell, the identification of chromosomes, and genes, to DNA.

Riddle Of Heredity raises some fantastic questions. Must we improve human genetic endowment and develop new techniques of procreation? If so, why? Has man the right to have children? And 100 years from now, will man be bred in test tubes?

Also under discussion is the possibility that molecular alterations or substitutions of specific genes will someday enable man to choose desirable traits for his children and eliminate unwanted characteristics. But the question of who will dictate the "genetic future" of mankind cannot readily be answered at present.

Derived from the Time-Life science library, Riddle Of Heredity is the final program of the summer series, The World We Live In. Saturday, August 26 7:00-9:00 a.m. and 8:00-10:00 p.m. OPENING CEREMONIES

HAL HOLBROOK as Mark Twain

HAL HOLBROOK as himself

Type-Casting a Problem for Actor

By DAN LEWIS

HOLLYWOOD - Hal Holbrook seemed like a forlorn figure sitting on an overturned wooden carton, doing tricks with a two-foot rope. and waiting to be called for his next scene.

"If I get these tricks down pat," Hal observed, "I'll be able to do a whole new show,

Will Rogers tonight.

For years, Hal, a most respected Broadway actor, was best known for his engaging one-man show, Mark Twain Tonight. The notion that rope tricks, which he took up as a hobby, could qualify him to do Will Rogers now that he had learned rope tricks, was a jest that brought an uneasy

'I once did Mark Twain in "I once did Mark Twain in Hollywood years ago and the only offers I got after that for films and TV was to play 70-year-old men," Holbrook said plaintively. "Then I finally got an offer to do a series The Senator (on The Bold Ones) and broke the barrier."

But The Senator segment lasted for just one season, despite the fact that it won almost every Emmy Award in sight. In its only season on television, The Senator was nominated for no less than six Emmy Awards, It took five of them, including a best-actor Emmy for Holbrook, and best series. It won also in the techand production quality areas; such as best written and best directed.

However, by the time the Emmy Awards were made, it was too late. The show already had been cancelled.

Now three years later, the subject of The Senator remains a sore spot with Holbrook, although he insists it "Doesn't bother me personally anymore."

"It upset me for a long time," Holbrook explained. "But the fact that it was a shame to have cancelled the show is what bothered me mostly, and not because I lost a series."

Since, Holbrook revealed that he had five offers to do TV series. 'I purposely stayed away from Hollywood for years with my Mark Twain Tonight production because of the problems I had getting offers. Suddenly, I was get-ting many offers."

He also telt it was time to bring Mark Twain Tonight back to Hollywood for a short run. He also toured with the show for a month. "I only like to do a month of it every year, to keep it alive," Hollywork explained. brook explained.

He turned down four of the television series offers because they weren't right for him. The fifth offer was from CBS, and he was very erthulastic about to I flue The Sensiastic about it. Like The Sen-ator, Holbrook considered it meaningful, a sociological drama set in the depression in drama set in the depression in a southern mountain area. It is tould be likened to The Homecoming (which CBS is putting into a series for next season and calling it The Waltons), and I was sold it was supposed to be CBS's big quality series for the 1973 series."

A pilot film had been selected.

A pilot_film had been sche-duled to start, but, without explanation Holbrook said, the project was dropped. makes no pretenses to hide his disappointment.

It left him available for a rief period. That's when director James Goldstone, who had directed Hal in the director pilot film for The Senator series, titled A Clear and Present Danger, called. Jim told me he was starting a picture for M.G.M. and wanted me to look at the script," Holbrook said.

The film is They Only Kill Their Masters, a psychological drama-suspense-mystery, which co-stars James Garner and Katharine Ross and features some names that will reflect a bit of nostalgia, dating back to the 1940s and 1950s: June Allyson, Peter Lawford and Ann Rutherford, who always played the snippy, snob girl in the Andy Hardy film series. This is Miss Rutherford's first motion-picture in 20 years.

The offer to do They Only Kill Their Masters came at a most opportune moment for Holbrook

Holbrook will start rehearsals on Arthur Miller's new play. The Creation of the World and Other Business. Rehearsals start Aug. 28, then there will be a two-week tryout in Boston, followed by a three-week pre-Broadway run in Washington. A week of previews on Broadway will lead up to a Nov. 16 opening. Holbrook will co-star with Barbara Harris and Bob Dishy.

"Broadway," he declared, "really doesn't hold the fasci-nation it used to, but a new Arthur Miller play compen-sates for it, and it always ex-citing even though the money isn't good. It's very costly to do a play on Broadway because the actor doesn't get nearly the money he can earn in films or on television. The more successful the play, the longer it 'runs, the more it becomes an economical strain for the actor."

In They Only Kill Their Masters, Holbrook has an en-tirely different type of role

"I needed the money so I could do a Broadway show next fall," Holbrook said.

He also played a key role in resolving the long labor dispute with the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technical Absociation of Cartesian C nicians this year.

Picard said that he sees the problems of the CBC differently than he did in 1968.

At that time, he was mostly familiar with the French-language television and radio networks. While there was some private competition for the CBC, the corporation seemed secure in Quebec.

Because of language and cultural differences, the threat of United States televi-sion stations on the Canadian border was insignificant in French Canada, However, Picard said he has learned now that the English television network is seriously chalnetwork is seriously chal-lenged by U.S. television carried on cable systems or picked up over-the-air from border stations.

The CBC was faced with the task of making the English television network different from the U.S. and Canadian private alternatives. The corporation would have to appeal to viewers seeking a specific kind of programming. The CBC should not try to attract 100 per cent of the viewing au-

Charting the future direc-tion of the corporation, Picard said he sees a greater role for programmers in important CBC decisions. The corpora-tion should work toward giving programmers more pres-tige and reward.

Programmers, he said should have considerable influence in CBC decisions without being forced to become part of the administration.

While Picard sees a host of problems still to be solved in the CBC, he apparently does not regard separatism in the CBC French network as one

Canadian Actor In Radio Documentary

Gordon Pinsent, who created the role of Quentin Dur-gens, MP on CBC-TV, and who recently starred in his own film, The Rowdyman, returns to the CBC as a Newfoundland sailor on The Bush and the Salon, Saturday, August 26 at 11:03 p.m. EDT on CBC-AM.

Pinsent, Pinsent, playing Edwin Tucker, takes part in The Greatest Hunt in the World by Greatest Hunt in the World of George Allan England, adapt-ed for radio by Toronto weiter-broadcaster, David Fulton. A semi-dramatic account of the Newfoundland seal hunt, it vividly recreates the dangers and adventures that took place on the high seas during the 1922 hunt: the desperate search for lost men; a mutiny; the imprison-ment by the ice; the blood and cruelty of the hunt; the lust, courage and endurance of the hunters

The book, first published in 1922 under the title, Vikings of the Iee, is unique in the annals of sealing. First pub-lished in 1924, it was out of print for 40 years until it was re-issued in pocket book form under its present title. It is considered one of the greatest descriptions of the hunt everwritten.

George England was born in Nebraska in 1877. As an explorer - journalist, his fasci-nation with out-of-the-way places brought him to Newfoundland where he was de-

Captain Abraham Kean, its commander, had been more than 50 years "to the ice," and held records for both the total weight and number seal skins.

Pinsent is a busy man these days, promoting his film across the country; recently he took a print of The Row-dyman for showing at a film festival in Czechoslovakia. On his return, he took part in a celebration in his native prov-

But Bob's mother, a Protes tant minister, didn't like the name her husband had given their young son, and scratched it out on the birth certificate and wrote in Charles Clarence Cumminbs. To attest to the naming. Sister Mary Alphonsis signed the birth certificate as a wifness.

When he brought the birth certificate to the United States Passport office for a trip abroad years later, the clerk got confused, and wrote down all the names, hence, the passport reads: Charles Clarence Robert Orville Sister Mary Alphonsis Cummings

How about Blade Stanhope Conway? Bob -explains that story. He went to England as a ship's waiter with the intent becoming an "English actor."

"The English actor was big in the U.S. in those days," Bob recalled. He got work in England, and returned to New York to start his Broadway career — as Blade Stanhope Conway — an English actor, Blade was the end of a curtain line in a play he did in London. Stannope was the captain of the ship he sailed going, and Conway was the captain on the return.

He did well on Broadway, as an Englishman in several musicals, including Zigfield Follies with Fanny Brice. Then he decided to go to Hol-

"By the time I got to Hollywood, the English actor syndrome had died," Bob recalled. "So I became a Texan."

Somewhere along the line, he became plain Bob Cum-mings, and started a remarkable, enduring career as a movie and television star that has taken on new life in reyears despite personal problems.

A new marriage, a young son, a new career as a business executive and the rejuvenation of his television ca-reer as a semi-regular on the Here's Lucy series in the upcoming season have all meshed into an exhilarating new period in Cummings' ca-

"I'm also planning to revive the grandpa character," Bot revealed.

Bob will become a romantic not will become a romantic interest for Lucy in the continuing role, and every so often grandpa will show up to put a crimp in his style with his own roguish qualities.

Eventually, Bob says he may consider doing his own may consider doing his own series again. He's tied up with a business conglomerate in Northern California, and has been made president of Bob Cummings, Inc., one of 47 companies under the corporate umbrella of Holiday Magic. Bob's own little diversification in his company will include a clothes line a viinclude a clothes line, a vi-tamin company (he long has been a leading advocate of vi-tamins) and, of course, a pro-duction company for films and television.

At this time any notion of his starring in his own series will have to wait. "I don't have the time now," he said. "A TV series is like a chess game. Once the production companies wring out of you what they want, you're tossed aside, and relegated to a has-been. I'll do another series when' my own company is ready to sponsor it."

Of his first marriage, Cummings still talks bitterly. "My former wife was an extraordinary business woman," he de-clared. "She wanted to talk business all the time. She was president of the corporation, and I was under contract to her. One Hallowe'en night, she delivered an ultimatum: 'Now you listen to me young man, or get out,' she told me. # Reasoner Ups Ratings For ABC Evening News

By LAWRENCE LAURENT The Washington Post

Harry Reasoner, the salty pixie of ABC news, just will not say how much money he is being paid. In typical Rea-soner fashion he does com-ment: "My wife said it is more than I'm worth."

By the most reliable reports
Reasoner shifted from CBS to ABC in December, 1970 with a contract that called for $200,000 a year for five years.
ABC-TV, quite plainly, is gettially with Howard K Smith. along with Howard K. Smith, has turned ABC-TV into a fully competitive network in the news department.

Much of the trouble with the ABC Evening News rested with the stations affiliated with the network. In March, 1971, a total of 23 primary affiliated stations declined to carry the program. Some ran movies, others telecast syndicated re-runs and some ran local news programs.

At the centre of the dispute between network and local stations was the tired old cause-effect argument, Stations argued that they would carry the program when its ratings improved. The network replied that national ratings would never improve unless stations changed and offered the program to about 14 per cent of all Unisted States homes that were being denied the opportunity to watch or avoid—the pro-

Ratings did rise. Pressure was put on the stations, and as stations agreed to carry the program the ratings improved some more. By Aug. 7 of this year The ABC Evening News With Howard K. Smith

The program is being tele-The program is being tele-cast by all 172 primary affili-ates. It is also being carried by 18 secondary affiliates, giving the program the biggest line-up stations since John Charles Daly inaugu-rated the series in the early 1950s

All of which means that Harry Reasoner has come a long way since his first job in journalism. He broke in as a 19-year-old reporter on the Minneapolis Times and his salary was 90 dollars a month. That works out to 21.60 dollars a week, roughly Reasoner's current pay for one minute of daily broadcasting.

Not that money changed Harry Reasoner. He is just as truculent, just as feisty and just as thoughtful now as when he was working as a drama critic after the Second World War. "I am," he has said many times, "too old to change." change.

change."

He had been working in television only six years when CBS news called him to New York in July, 1956. He quickly developed into one of the network's frontline performers, being handed the choice "calendar" assignment and later being slotted as the anchorman for the network's late evening Sunday news program.

ing."
Meanwhile, over at ABC news, president Elmer Lower had grown tired, too. The network, from its beginnings, had run a poor third to CBS and NBC. It had the smallest and NBC. It had the smallest budget for news and the fewest number of affiliated stations. Lower, who had worked both at CBS and at NBC news, hired Av Westin to be the producer of the eve-ning news, and he had teamed the tough-minded Frank Reynolds with the softer, in-trospective Howard K. Smith. Ratings had improved.

Lower ordered a "preference" survey made by public opinion analysis, and the results indicated clearly that the next change should be the hiring of Harry Reasoner.

The result of the next change has been profound. Instead of a fight between CBS and NBC with ABC a poor third, the nation now has three fully competitive evening news shows. In some studies ABC is in second place and NBC is third.

Another kind of change

Another kind of change came in 1968 when Lower deliberately took his organization out of direct, gavel-to-gavel competition at national political conventions.

He chose instead to have a nightly 90-minute ummary. Lower usually adds, quickly, that his network adds any coverage "that is warranted by events." Reasoner says. that during the recent Demo-cratic National Convention he and Smith worked all through the night, giving them a new record for "the longest 90 minutes."

Reasoner is convinced that the "edited 90 minutes" is "the right thing to do." He adds, however: 'I'm not at all certain that we have found the best way to do it. We're still learning."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - With unemployment lines in Hollywood lengthening, the Screen Actors Guild places heavy blame on TV networks for using unlimited numbers of rerunsrather than making new shows.

The Guild, which has launched a campaign called STOP, or Save Television Original Programing, said it has won the support of George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO in its hattle local contents. battle against reruns.

Guild president John Gavin said he met Meany in Washington concerning the Guild's efforts to convince the Federal Communications Commission to limit reruns. Gavin said Meany has agreed to support the Guild when it approaches the AFL-CIO executive council for backing later this month.

Gavin said 50,000 signatures have been gathered on a petition to be submitted to the FCC by Aug. 25. It asks that reruns on the networks in prime time be limited to 25 per cent of that time.

Actors whose shows are rerun, he noted, receive small residual payments which are only a fraction of what they could earn on new shows.

Last March, Gavin sald, the Guild found that 28 per cent of prime time was occupied by reruns. By April, he said, that figure had soared to 72 per cent.

HOLLYWOOD — June Ally-son and I toured MGM's famed Lot Two the other day

A History Of Ireland In Music And Song

the history of Ireland has been closely reflected in its bellads. In each generation, even to the present day, the struggles and aspirations of the Irish people were illustrated in their ballads, laments and songs of resistance. On CBC Tuesday Night August 29 at 8:03 p.m. EDT on CBC Radio (on CBC FM's Encore September 7 at 8:00 p.m.) Michael and Grainne Yeats discuss and perform these traditional Irish songs, in their History of Ireland in

The songs of the Irish have long been famous for their beauty and eloquence. But beauty and eloquence. But there is another quality that makes these ballads unique: in no other country has the writing and the singing of bal-lads been so intimately bound up with the social, religious and political struggles of the necole.

were almost the only form of political agitation available to political agitation available to the Irish people. The destruc-tion of the old Gaelic order in the 16th and 17th centuries deprived the Irish nation of all those who could speak for it. The people no longer had anyone to lead or defend them, and it was only in their songs that they were able to lament the past and express their aspirations for the fu-ture.

In this program Grainne Yeats sings some of these bal-lads, unaccompanied. Songs date from the time of Oliver Cromwell, through the 19th century famine and emigration. There are songs of the 1916 Rising through the cre-ation of an independent Irish state in 1922.

As part of the presentation Michael Yeats introduces the ballads and sets each of them in the context of the historical events which gave rise to them. The program is designed to take the form of a continuous narrative, part spoken, part sung.

Michael Yeats is the only son of the poet William Butler Yeats. A lawyer and for many years a leading spokesman for the government party in the Irish Senate, he is well-informed on economic and social affairs and on the history and tradieconomic and social affairs and on the history and tradi-tion of his country. Senator Yeats is a prominent figure in Irish musical life and an authority on Irish folk music.

Grainne Yeats, wife of the Senator, is one of the most distinguished present-day harpists in Ireland. She has performed in Europe and the U.S., and has recorded her folk songs for the New York company, Spoken Arts. In 1966 she received the Harriet Cohen International Award

A History of Ireland in Song was recorded in Toronto and produced by Richard Coulter.

Violence in Fantasyland -The Evil of the Tube

It seems so obvious now, in hindsight, that I would like to say that I recognized from the very beginning that television would have a shattering effect on the minds of children.

Fact is, I thought just the opposite. On that memorable day when the tiny screen first lit up in our living room it seemed to me that it might open a window on the world for the young, that, however poor the programming might be, its cumulative effect would be educational and that the child, more than the It, would be a selective, discerning viewer. How wrong can a man be?

What could not be foreseen then was that television would become so commercial, so crassly competitive in the ratings game, that it would develop into a mind-clobbering, tasteless, repetitive exercise in false values and violence during the socalled "prime time" periods. With very few exceptions the quality programs, those which might have the effect of broadening a child's mind, are scheduled after the child's bed-time.

It couldn't be foreseen, either, that so many children would become habitual, hypnotic viewers, content to watch almost anything so long as it contains action. Thus the latest ratings in this particular area indicate that two programs at the 5:30 time slot, Get Smart and Hogan's Heroes, each with a high quotient of violence in the name of comedy, have massive audiences of

Pediatricians and child psychologists are all but unanimous in their concern that this passivity — "the passivity that requires all activity to be produced for them, not by them," as one describes it — has a damaging, retarding effect on a child's mental and emotional development.

That conclusion has been demonstrated in several clinical studies. What is less easy to document is the overwhelming, traumatic twisting of a child's hidden fantasy that a sustained dâily diet of television may cause. If it's true, as Dr. Spock and many another child specialist believe it to be, that an adult's character is shaped by that immensely private inner world of the child's imaginative day-dreams, what grotesque thoughts are planted there from that ovil little screen?

are planted there from that evil little screen?

Dr. T. Berry Brazelton, an American pediatrician, has written some chilling words on precisely that subject. They're words that every parent of a young boy or girl should pin up as a reminder somewhere close to the magic eye.

By the time a child is five or six years old, his fantasies are already as violent as those in any horror movie adults might construct, and his sexual fantasies can match anything presented in a grade C movie in Dr. Brazelton's opinion. "The violence and adult forms of sexuality displayed on television mobilize these fantasies together with all the fear and anxiety that go with them.

* * "It comes down to the fact that television gives a child two choices — he can actively suppress his feelings or he can ineffectually play them out. No wonder, then, that a child comes away from a set believing that physical violence is a perfectly acceptable form of self-expression." acceptable form of self-expression.

For parents whose childhood was spent in the days before the living room screen, whose fantasies generally came from books and more often than not were romantic or heroic, it's hard to grasp the idea that their offspring have just as vivid the self-extrement of the self-and compelling dreams that now originate almost entirely in the crudities on the tube.

Perhaps that explains why so few parents regulate their children's viewing, why there's seldom a screening of programs, as there would be a screening of books or magazines, to grams, as there would be a screening of books or magazines, to know exactly what they're being exposed to.

There are some who believe that a direct link may be established between television violence and violence in the street and I'm not sure that it's too far-fetched. The romantic fantasies of Arthur Bremer, convicted in the attempted assassination of Governor George Wallace, centred about the actress. Donna Reed, his "TV mother." Isn't it as likely that his homicidal fantasies came from the same blood-and-guts dream machine?

Perhaps there's some slight cause for hope in the increasing criticism, notably from women's groups, now being directed against the networks in the United States. One token response to that has been an up-grading of afternoon programs specifically designed for the very young.

Until public opinion makes that alternative a reality, how ever, it remains entirely the responsibility of the parents with mighty few signs that they're willing to accept it.

Sign Ban Passed: ourism Included

Final approval of the controversial sign bylaw was given Thursday by city coungil, ignoring a last - ditch attempt to get an exemption for the tourist industry.

W. T. Fraser, Vancouver Island district manager for Neon Products Ltd. and Seaboard Advertising Ltd. who spoke also for Bayliss Sign Ltd., argued for amendment of the bylaw to exempt third party advertising on behalf of tourist businesses.

Otherwise, he said, reiterating a presentation to alder-men in committee, there would be a hardship for some businesses that rely on signs to direct trade.

The bylaw would eliminate 27 such signs and leave six in the downtown area, Fraser

Aldermen heard Fraser by unanimous consent even though the bylaw had been through three readings, then confirmed passage at the end "We've been at it three or four months now," said Ald. Clyde Savage. "We've got to start somewhere." The bylaw can be reviewed later if beenecessary, he said:

Relocated Station Opening Oct. 1

Victoria's new railway passenger depot on Esquimalt Road near Catherine is scheduled to open Oct. 1.

Delayed by the construction industry tie-up earlier this summer, the $40,000 concrete block structure is being built by the city of Victoria to replace the E and N Railway depot on Store Street at the foot of Pandora

The new structure will contain a ticket office and waiting room for E and N Dayliner passenger service, along dispatch and signal operations.

Demolition of the old reinforced concrete terminal on Store Street will be undertaken immediately after the rail, service relocates, city manager William Hooson said.

This will allow the city to proceed with the extension of Pandora and realignment of Victoria Chamber of Commerce President Terry Farmer said today it will not be possible to start late night ferry sailings between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen until September, "about three or four weeks from now."

Farmer, member of a committee set up by the provintrial run, said it would not be possible to meet the Aug. 30 deadline set by Premier Ben-

Biologist Plans Suit Over Job

Dr. A. H. Acara said today government permission for legal action will be the next step in his battle over his dismissal more than a year ago.

The permission is necessary because citizens cannot take legal action against the B.C. government without first obtaining a "fiat" or government approval.

"And they may not give permission," he said. "If not, then the injustice will stay with them."

The former provincial biologist, whose studies led him to blame widespread death of fish in Kootenay Lake on the effects of contaminated water from the Duncan Dam hydro project, said his case isn't closed as far as he is con-

BOBSLEDDERS SKID OUT, OARSWOMEN (GET THAT) IN!

MUNICH (CP) — Olycapic officials decided Thursday to drop the four-man bobsled event from the program of the 1976 Winter Games in Denver, Colo., as too costly to stage. Conservationists also had objected to tearing up the Colorado

Canada won a gold medal in the four-man competition in 1964, the first time Canadians entered the event, but did not win medals in 1968 and 1972.

The International Olympic Committee, winding up its business before the opening of the 1972 Summer Games Saturday, refused to switch the four-man bobs to Lake Placid, N.Y., site of the only bobsied run in North America.

But if Canadians lost a chance for medals on the sleds, they will have several extra ones if they can find enough female carsmen to compete in Montreal for the 1976 Summer

The IOC added a full program of women's rowing events to the program in Montreal, breaking tradition in Olympic rowing which always has been strictly for men.

Avery Brundage, outgoing president of the IOC, said the four-man bobs were struck from the Denver venue mainly because of the prohibitive cost of building a one-mile course.

Brundage noted it cost $1 million to build a four-man course at the Sapporo Winter Games. It cost $1 million to tear it down and rebuild the landscape.

Someone computed it was costing $100,000 for each competitor in the bobsled," Brundage said.

MUNICH (CP-AP) Bavaria's festive capital welcomes the Olympic torch tonight as a relay runner from Greece jogs into historic Koenigsplatz where Adolf Hitler plotted his course to infamy.

The 20th Olympic Games, a $1-billion undertaking of contemporary West Germany, became a reality Saturday with athletes of at-least 122 countries marching into the 80,000-seat Olympia Stadium.

On the eve of the opening ceremony the Olympic torch, ferried by hundreds of runners from Olympia, Greece, will reach Munich to be received by Olympic officials and a likely international ovation from tourists and sports fans gathered in Koenigsplatz.

The Russians: Boy, Are They in Shape!

Coach Harry Sinden of Team Canada (or is it Hockey Canada) probably put the whole thing in its proper perspective: "I wish I had more time," he said this week of the training program for the NHL All-Stars who will meet the Russian National hockey team in an eight-game series pretty soon now.

What Harry was saying was that the fat cats of Team Canada, impressive and as good as they are, had better not take the Russians too lightly. Ivan will be in better physical condition than any Canadian.

The danger is, Sinden was suggesting, is that just because we invented the game of lockey, more or less, it doesn't necessarily follow that other people can't play the sport better, and that conditioning may be the factor that the Russians are back-

So be warned. And be careful, too, of the low key Soviet approach to the series.

"We never said we thought we could win," said one of the Soviet officials watching a Team Canada practice in Toronto this week. "We just asked for the chance to play."

There's the real tipoff. Because Ivan isn't ever allowed to play internationally, unless he can do very well, and not be

John Ferguson, the assistant Team Canada coach, was recently in Russia, and he hasn't been one of those who have been predicting any sweep for the NHL All-Stars.

John, rather, has said that he was very impressed with the Russian teaching and training methods, and that they were years ahead of Canada in this regard.

They Should Have Listened to Larry

Larry Regan of the Los Angeles Kings said the same things

Not many listened to Larry then, even though he was one of the first NHL managers to go to Russia on a fact-finding hockey tour. They should have, for it was Regan who predicted then that Russia eventually would challenge and perhaps even surprise the NHL.
"The Russian National Team could beat most of the NHL teams right now," he said as late as last year.

Just the other day, two more qualified observers warned that Russia isn't in this thing to lose. Herb and Gerry Pinder, former Canadian National players, have predicted some major eyebrow lifting before the series is "The Russians will have an edge in conditioning," said

"and the timing, in September, definitely favors them. This view parallels the Sinden thinking — there is no sub-

The Pinders also said that they played against the NHL and the Russians, many times, and did better against the NHL. Besides, the final four games are in Moscow, and in the wider arena there, it may be Team Canada that finds itself at a disadvantage. It is an all-together different ball game. So much for the bad news. Now for the good.

Actually Sinden was only being honest, because if the all-stars had been reading all the other glowing press reports, perhaps their training camp had been lethargic as a result.

Allan Eagleson, head of the NHL Players Association, is on became highly nationalistic even before his private protege Bobby Orr, donned skates for a leisurely drill this week. "We will win, eight games to nothing," he is reported as saying. With Orr, then, only the score will be in doubt.

That's fine for morale, but Eagleson never played hockey, or against the Russians. Did he?

First, the Dennis Hull Slapshot

Well then, how about John McLellan and Bob Davidson of the Leafs? They went to Russia to scout the opposition, have recently returned, anticipate no problems. But not a clean

They're not better, in any way," is the consensus of their public report. What they have said in private to Sinden and Ferguson may be a Soviet of another matter.

Because there was some hedging. "You can't take them lightly," said McLellan. "They can skate, and boy, they're in

There's that phrase again: "Boy, they're in shape." That's - the key to the Russian hope chest. And when you are in shape -you can play it just as rough as the other country; and The Russians likely will.

Where then will the series be decided? In goal, is the general opinion that pervades all talk of the series. Even the Russian coaches who studied the Team Canada workouts agree. They consider the NHL goalkeepers "very good" and with "quick hands." Other observers have said that the Russian goalkeeping is weak, in comparison, and that they don't particularly like high shots. Davidson and Mclellan concurred with this view. This prompted Chicago's Stan Mikita to suggest: In the first 10 seconds, why don't we have Dennis Hull wind up and crank a siapshot around the Russian goaltender's Agreed. It may save some of that time Sinden was talking

Les Smith, acting high commissioner who has dual accreditation in Kenya and Uganda, was in Kampala today looking for accommodation for the team that will travel from here and from the Canadian immigration office in Beirut, Lebanon.

Although the announcement Thursday of Canada's offer to accept some of the Asians did not specify how many would be admitted. Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasy said Thursday he expected 3,000. Ugandans would take up the offer immediately, and 1,000 or 2.000 would make their bids

The minister said there was no upper limit on the offer but if all the developed Commonwealth countries do their da should be adequate.

Prime Minister Trudeau today denied the 3,000 figure and said Canada won't play the "numbers game."

Asked about a possible backlash in Canada as a re-sult of the Asians landing in areas of low employment, he said: "That must be for the people to consider. Canadians generally are open to this kind of refugee problem. I would imagine that if vast quantities of people are dumped on the labor market in some places where there is

Crisis Centre Callers Double Since Opening

Times Staff
DUNCAN—Calls to the Cow-chan Crisis Centre here for help, advice and just someone to talk to have more than doubled since it was opened May

Co-ordiator Ralph Yontez, 31, who also helped set up the crisis centre in Nanaimo, said there were 179 calls received in the period from July 12 to Aug. 8 while in the period from May 25 to July 11 there were 77 calls.

Most of the calls involved personal problems, general information or assistance. Many were on marriage and drugs, alcohol and legal problems.

At least 10 of the calls were from grateful people who had been helped.

Yontez said that until July 11 the crisis centre handled two suicide calls and during the later half eight persons who threatened to commit sui-cide phoned the centre. Yontez said that about one-third of the emergency calls are referred to other agencies in the community that include the mental health centre doc-tors, legal-aid, family counselling. community action group, alcoholic's anonymous, welfare, RCMP, Cowichan Cowichan Home Service and other services.

The centre, which has a staff of 10 young people, was set up under an Opportunities For Youth grant of $16,500 us," Yontez said, "We also plus $2,000 from the non-medical use of drugs.

When the grant expires on Sept. 15, Yontez said that he will stay on as a volunteer until another grant can be secured or another way of financing the centre can be found.

PLANNERS NEED QUESTIONNAIRES

SHAWNIGAN LAKE --Ratepayers here are urged to fill out questionaires being circulated by the Advisory Planning Commission "so that we can find out the wants of all of the people," chair-man Bernard Falconberg said

Falconberg said it is important to establish priorities be-fore the commission can make recommendations to the Cowichan Valley Regional

After all of the ques-tionaires have been received and the wants, objections and suggestions by ratepayers have been compiled, Falcon-berg said a public meeting will be held with Shawnigan Lake residents in the fall to

Since the commission began circulating the questionaire in the form of a letter six weeks ago, with some people still receiving them, Falconberg said he has received 70 replies. "We hope to receive at least 150," he said.

Anyone that hasn't received the questionaire can just put their opinions and wants for Shawnigan Lake in a letter and forward it to Falconberg, Shawnigan Lake Electoral "B", Shawnigan Lake, priorities already stated in re-turned letters are; control over noisy power boats and irresponsible boating; organized water for summer homes; land use regarding new subdivisions around the lake; pollution in the lake mainly caused by faulty sep-tic tanks and an improved road system.

FIVE-DAY NIGHTMARE ENDS FOR CLIMBER

EVERETT, Wash (AP) — A five-day nightmare ended today for Craig Keyes, when he was rescued from a steep slope on Mount Index where he had been hanging from a

The Snohomish County sheriff's office said Keyes was lift-ed from the foot of the cliff by a helicopter which headed for the Sand Point naval air station in Seattle. Keyes was to be taken to Swedish Hospital from there.

Keyes, about 27 and a resident of the Bellingham area, had a broken leg and other injuries, according to sheriff's deputies. They said he was in remarkably good condition, considering his ordeal.

Keyes was climbing alone when an accident occurred Monday, leaving him hanging from a rope. He was discov-ered Wednesday by other climbers, who secured him and went for help.

Hanoi Getting Supplies

WASHINGTON (WP) High-level U.S. Air Force officials say North Vietnam is continuing to import sizeable amounts of war supplies despite heavy damage from U.S. bombing and a mine blockade of its ports since early in

These officials estimate in an assessment disputed by the Pentagon — that 25 per cent or even more of the previous flow of war material continues to find its way into north through new makeshift techniques

That amount of fuel, food, ammunition and heavy arms, these officials believe, may be enough to sustain Hanio's war although at an uncertain level of fighting.

Furthermore, these official indicate that there is little nore that the U.S. could do in the form of military action barring the use of unaccepta ble measures such as bomb ing the dikes - to squeeze that flow of supplies much
